24TH JULY, 2025

SERIAL NO. 4077

Sub. No. 1 THE COMMISSIONER'S CORNER

Greetings again my distinguished Colleagues,

I trust that you have been having a great week. I started writing this week's Corner, today Sunday July 20, at 6:03 a.m. At the time we were seeing 20 fewer murders, or 34% less than the similar period in July last year. As at yesterday, Thursday July 24th, and with 7 days to go before the month ends, we have seen 33 murders less than the similar period in July last year. It also represents 33 murders less so far for the 3rd quarter. This is an almost 43% reduction for the month of July and the 3rd quarter. Remember Colleagues, our aim is to keep the momentum going, and to continue to deny the gangsters freedom to kill and maim and hold our communities hostage. Let me on behalf of a grateful nation, thank you for every day that you venture out on a tour of duty to keep us safe.

Let us always remember that we are from our communities. There is no us and them. Some seem not to understand that. There is no separation between ourselves and our communities. Every one of us is a part of a community, within which we have friends and loved ones, neighbours and families, social groups and businesses. We are first citizens and then police. It means therefore that our commitment to protect our communities must be unwavering. I know I am preaching to the converted, as this is your everyday lived reality. It is useful however, to occasionally remind ourselves of this and why it is so critical that we do not fail. Let us continue to strive towards helping to create the type of community that we would like to see – of which we are a part.

Colleagues, as proud Jamaicans and members of the society, we share the same rights and protection under the Constitution as every other citizen of this beautiful country. One such is our right to vote for whoever we choose. This is more than a right, it is a responsibility. One that we must be mindful to exercise, as our democracy depends on it. However, while we do so, let us not forget that we are not at liberty to consciously and deliberately engage in any activity that may give the appearance of a political bias during the conduct of our duty. We must remember that this is a serious breach of discipline and stands to mar our professional credibility. Any breach of political neutrality, if found to be true after investigation, may result in strong disciplinary actions that include reprimand or demotion, suspension, or dismissal.

Colleagues, we are strictly prohibited from active involvement in politics while still serving. The rules are clearly outlined in the JCF Code of Conduct, Police Service Regulations, and supported by the Constabulary Force Act. Just to be abundantly clear, active involvement refers to attending political meetings or rallies while not on duty; openly supporting or opposing political parties or candidates; making political statements in public forums including social media; distributing political literature; or participating in political campaign activities.

These activities and conducts undermine the political neutrality of the JCF. And so the rules are there to preserve its credibility, impartiality, and effectiveness. The public must be confident that we enforce the law without fear or favour, regardless of political affiliation. It means therefore, Colleagues, that while I pray no such case of improper political conduct ever occurs, especially during this season, you can be assured that the High Command will not hesitate to administer the strongest consequence(s) in any proven case.

In these defining times, when the stakes are high, relative to our mission, and the margin for error is slim, our professionalism must shine brighter than ever. The trust that the Jamaican people place in us is fragile and must never be taken for granted. As we continue our efforts to reduce crime, build stronger community ties, and uphold the values of democracy, let us do so with integrity and impartiality, being mindful of the rules by which we are governed. We are the guardians of peace and order, and our legacy will be judged not only by the numbers we drive down, but by the standards we lift up.

Let me wish for you and your families a peaceful and blessed weekend. Until next week. Walk good.

1.0 Introduction

The Jamaica Constabulary Force recognizes the critical role that forensic science plays in modern law enforcement, specifically criminal investigations. The increasing complexity of crimes, particularly those involving forensic and digital evidence, demands a more integrated and specialized forensic capability to house and manage the comprehensive body of knowledge and forensic investigators within the Jamaica Constabulary Force. The current structure limits the JCF's ability to retain skilled forensic experts and have effective succession planning. Without proper recognition, opportunities for professional development and a clear path, the JCF risks continuing to lose valuable expertise essential to its crime fighting mission.

The Jamaica Constabulary Force in a bid to modernize its investigative approach, recognizes the need for restructuring of its forensic services to better address the challenges posed by both traditional and emerging crimes by consolidating and enhancing the forensic capabilities and expertise, hence the establishment of the Forensic Services Branch (FSB). Undeniably, the creation of this branch will lead to proactive investigative and operational responses rather than just being reactive, which currently exists. The FSB will provide a comprehensive range of forensic services, including digital and communication forensics, fingerprint analysis, ballistics, question document analysis and crime scene investigation.

2.0 Purpose

The purpose of the Forensic Services Branch is to strengthen the current gaps in service delivery by coordinating and management of shared resources of forensic investigators that will facilitate real-time communication, enhance confidence amongst stakeholders and reduce turned around time for the completion of investigations.

3.0 Scope

This policy and standard operating procedure shall apply to all members of the JCF Forensic Services Branch. It is an established guide for members in forensic services, including digital and communication forensics, fingerprint analysis, ballistics, question document analysis and crime scene investigation.

4.0 Policy Statement

It is the policy of the JCF that the Forensic Services Branch will provide and effectively manage its investigation process through:

- 4.1 Cross-functional Opportunities: A centralized facility provides a dedicated space for continuous training, research, and development.
- 4.2 Foster Innovation: A shared environment encourages cross-disciplinary innovation and problem-solving.
- 4.3 Reduce Costs: Shared infrastructure and resources lower operational expenses.
- 4.4 Improved Quality and Productivity: A branch dedicated to forensic services allows for better oversight, monitoring and quality products.

WHO IS ATTACKING OUR NETWORK? II Hacker vs Threat Actor

In previous publication, we emphasized that; cyberattacks are not a matter of if but when. We also highlighted that organizations like ours are prime targets and our most valuable assets are the main prize for attackers. Remember, assets aren't just physical devices; they're the lifeblood of our operations and include, sensitive data and intellectual property, servers, computers, smartphones, and tablets. Everything we rely on to function efficiently is at risk.

In this week's edition, we dive deeper into the shadows of the cyber world. Not all digital enemies wear the same mask, but do you know who's really behind the attacks? Are they hackers driven by curiosity, or threat actors with a mission? Understanding the difference could be the key to defending your data and staying one step ahead. Read on to uncover the truth behind the terms, the motives that drive them, and why it matters to our security posture.

Hacker vs Threat Actor

As we know, the term “hacker” is commonly used to describe a threat actor. However, the term “hacker” has a variety of meanings, as follows:

- A clever programmer capable of developing new programs and coding changes to existing programs to make them more efficient.
- A network professional who uses sophisticated programming skills to ensure that networks are not vulnerable to attack.
- A person who tries to gain unauthorized access to devices on the internet.
- An individual who runs programs to prevent or slow network access to a large number of users, or corrupt or wipe out data on servers.

A threat actor can gain access to a server, host, or network through an attack vector pathway. Attack vectors originate from inside or outside the corporate network, as shown in the figure. For example, threat actors may target a network through the internet to disrupt network operations and launch a denial-of-service (DoS) attack.

External and Internal Threats

White Hat Hacker

Gray Hat Hacker

Black Hat Hacker

APPENDIX 'B' (CONT'D) TO FORCE ORDERS NO. 4077 DATED 2025-07-24

1. White hat hackers are ethical hackers who use their programming skills for good, ethical, and legal purposes. They may conduct network penetration tests in an attempt to compromise networks and systems by leveraging their knowledge of computer security systems to identify network vulnerabilities. Security vulnerabilities are reported to developers and security personnel who attempt to fix the vulnerabilities before it can be exploited. Some organizations award prizes to white hat hackers when they provide information that helps to identify vulnerabilities.
2. Grey hat hackers are individuals who commit crimes and do arguably unethical things, but not for personal gain or to cause damage. An example would be someone who compromises a network without permission and then discloses the vulnerability publicly. Grey hat hackers may disclose a vulnerability to the affected organization after having compromised their network. This allows the organization to fix the problem.
3. Black hat hackers are unethical criminals who violate computer and network security for personal gain or for malicious reasons, such as attacking networks. Black hat hackers exploit vulnerabilities to compromise computer and network systems.

Types of Threat Actors

State-sponsored

State-Sponsored hackers are threat actors who steal government secrets, gather intelligence, and sabotage networks of foreign governments, terrorist groups, and corporations. Most countries in the world participate to some degree in state-sponsored hacking. Depending on a person's perspective, these are either white hat or black hat hackers

Vulnerability brokers

Vulnerability brokers typically refer to grey hat hackers who attempt to discover exploits and report them to vendors, sometimes for prizes or rewards.

Hacktivists

Hacktivists are grey hat hackers who use their skills to promote or protest political and social causes. They often target organizations or governments by leaking sensitive information, publishing articles or videos, and launching distributed denial of service (DDoS) attacks as a form of public demonstration.

APPENDIX 'C' MEDICAL SERVICES BRANCH ARTICLE
TO FORCE ORDERS NO. 4077 DATED 2025-07-24

- Throughout the world, rats are known as carriers of disease and illness. The illness we will be focusing on today is Leptospirosis.
- What is Leptospirosis? Leptospirosis is an infectious disease caused by bacteria Leptospira sp. Leptospirosis occurs worldwide, including Jamaica. The World Health Organization (WHO) considers it the most widely spread illness from animals to humans.
- How is Leptospirosis transmitted? Transmission primarily occurs by coming into contact with water contaminated by the urine of infected animals. Leptospirosis can be transmitted to humans through cuts of the skin, or through the eyes, nose and mouth. It can also enter humans through the drinking of water or ingestion of food contaminated with urine of infected animals, often rats.
- Though rats contribute significantly to the spread of this disease, virtually all wild and domestic mammals can. Cattle, buffaloes, horses, sheep, goat, pigs, cats and dogs are also considered common reservoirs of the bacteria that cause leptospirosis.
- Everyone is at risk at contracting leptospirosis. Additionally, some persons are at higher risk of coming into contact with the bacteria such as:
 - Farm and agricultural workers
 - Military and police personnel
 - Survivors of natural disasters (e.g. flooding)
 - Sewer workers
 - People engaging in recreational water sports (swimming, etc)
- In some countries, practically the whole population is at risk as a result of high exposure to contaminated water in daily activities, e.g. working in paddies and sugarcane plantations.
- The incubation period of leptospirosis is usually 5–14 days, afterwards the symptoms can vary from a fever, muscle pain, jaundice (yellowing of eyes, membranes, etc.), and “flu-like” symptoms.
- If you have symptoms of leptospirosis consult the Medical Services branch or your nearest available physician.
- Measures to prevent transmission of leptospirosis include the following:
 - Covering skin lesions with waterproof dressings.
 - Washing and cleaning wounds.
 - Try to avoid wading or swimming in potentially contaminated water.

APPENDICES 'E' TO 'G' LETTERS OF APPRECIATION
APPENDIX 'D' TO FORCE ORDERS NO. 4077 DATED 2025-07-24

COMMISSIONERS OF POLICE

24th June 2025

Commissioner Dr. Kevin Blake
Jamaica Constabulary Force
103 Old Hope Rd
Kingston 6

Dear Commissioner Blake,

I wanted to reach out personally to thank you for the exceptional hospitality during my recent visit to Jamaica for the JCF Transformation Expo 2.0. Your team's warmth and professionalism made the entire experience memorable, and I truly appreciated the opportunity to witness firsthand the remarkable work you're doing.

The expo was nothing short of impressive. Seeing the JCF's transformation journey up close, the focus on people, quality, and technology, reinforced everything I spoke about in my opening remarks. You and your team have every reason to be proud of what you've accomplished. The statistics speak for themselves, but more importantly, the culture change and community engagement I observed demonstrate real, sustainable progress.

During my visit, I had the chance to speak with an officer from your human trafficking unit. Our conversation was enlightening, and I was struck by the dedication and professionalism of your specialized units. When asked, the officer mentioned that personnel in these high-risk roles aren't currently subject to annual mental health wellness assessments. I suggested this might be something worth exploring.

Given the nature of their work and the high potential for vicarious trauma, I thought you might be interested to know that in the Bermuda Police Service, officers in similar positions undergo annual mental health check-ins with a qualified professional. It's a proactive approach to ensure they remain fit for purpose while protecting their wellbeing. I'd be happy to share our protocols and processes if you think it might be useful as you continue strengthening your people-centered approach.
