SERIAL NO. 4075

Sub. No. 1 THE COMMISSIONER'S CORNER

Greetings again my distinguished Colleagues,

I trust that you have been having a great week. Please join me in congratulating Detective Sergeant Doris Stewart, Detective Corporal Kevin Barrett, and Detective Constable Regina Green, three of our colleagues who have successfully completed their final bar exams at the Norman Manley Law School. The continued upskilling of yourselves has been a force behind our awesome capacity as an organisation.

We continue to press hard against criminals and criminal gangs to keep our communities safe. As I often remind us, resilience is not about never falling, but it is rather about how quickly we rise after a fall. But another perspective of resilience shared with me by Mr. Warren Clarke, Deputy Commissioner, is that resilience is also distinguishing oneself as a champion. And that one does not become a champion by winning one race. To be a champion one has to be persistent and convincing. It means Colleagues, that we should not yet claim victory over this monster of crime and violence because of a successful first half of the year. Let us do it again, and even better, for this the next half. We may have some tough days, as we have seen on a couple of days last week, and again on Wednesday of this week. But again, you have demonstrated resilience in realigning the train back on its track. Colleagues, there are still yet a few who have not gotten the message that it is not wise to kill and maim in today's Jamaica. And so we get the occasional days when these slow learning imbeciles prey upon citizens with deadly intent. Until they get the message, these days may come. And so, for those that we have failed to prevent, we must ensure we never fail in our response in bringing them to justice. In time, they will get the message.

So let us place our focus squarely on the next six months, taking it one month at a time. Commanders, continue to ensure that the men and women who you lead understand the mission as well as you understand it. Continue to ensure that they are fully supported, and that they benefit from the best leadership. Our vision and strategies are of no effect, if they are not understood and implemented where the rubber hits the road – and that's with you, my frontline Colleagues.

We are being looked upon by a hopeful nation, to continue to tame this crime monster and to bring our beautiful nation back to the peaceful country it was several decades ago. So many of our fellow citizens in the Diaspora would love nothing more than to return to the land of their birth, but have always been concerned about being victims of violent crime. So many of our citizens have served this country in various capacities in both the public and private sectors, and have retired with the hope of a well-deserved, peaceful and tranquil retirement. We must never accept that they are to be expected to spend the last few years of their lives in fear of some hoodlums, who prey upon them because they want the few moments of perceived glory that come from their evil deeds.

Colleagues, this is why we do what we do. And this is why what we do is more than a job, it is a calling. That is why we skilfully advance in the face of danger in pursuit of those who believe they can continue with their murderous agenda at will. We do this because we know the people of this country are grateful to us for facing down these criminals, and for restoring peace to our communities. These are our communities, from where we came, in which we live and raise our families, and to which we pledge our commitment to keep safe. And so, even while a few in some quarters seem not to be able to share in the hope of a more secure and just society, we must press on.

THE COMMISSIONER'S CORNER (CONT'D)

Let us therefore remain steadfast and focused in delivering on our promise and commitment, and the realizing of our vision. The journey ahead will demand even more from each of us, but it also offers the promise of a safer, more hopeful Jamaica - one we are actively shaping through our daily efforts. Let the progress of the past months fuel our determination for the months to come. The people are depending on us, and I am confident that together, we will rise to the occasion - not just once, but again and again - until safety is no longer the exception, but the norm. Let us stay strong, stay vigilant, and stay the course.

Let me wish for you and your families a blessed and peaceful weekend. Until next week, walk good.

ASSISTANCE TO MET OFFICE

21. When members of the staff are unable to contact their office at the Norman Manley International or Donald Sangster International Airports after a hurricane, they will report to the Highway and Safety Patrol Division, Elletson Road or the Freeport Police Station in Montego Bay for assistance.

The Police Officer concerned will contact the National Works Agency to provide transport and will render any other assistance possible.

If telephone communication is impossible or non-existent when the MET Office wishes to pass a hurricane bulletin to Police Headquarters, etc., such bulletin will be passed in writing to the police station at the Norman Manley International Airport.

The police there will pass the information to PECC by the fastest means available. The Officer at PECC will then notify the following as to its contents – Radio Stations, Telephone Companies and Central Emergency Relief Committee. All members will ensure that they are aware of the provisions of the Hurricane Standing Orders.

APPENDIX 'A' (CONT'D) TO FORCE ORDERS NO. 4075 DATED 2025-07-10

1.0 Introduction

An essential strategic priority of the JCF is the promise of effective internal and external communication. External communication facilitates the engagement of the organization's key stakeholders, primarily the citizens of Jamaica. One of the strategies employed to achieve this objective is the sharing of the Weekly Force Orders.

While the organization seeks to improve external communication, it must simultaneously improve the way in which communications are made within. The past few years have witnessed revolutionary changes in the use of information and communication technology within the JCF. In particular, electronic mail (email) has become a vital component of the total job function of the average member.

The use of email within the JCF must however be managed and guided by policy in order to achieve a common standard of quality that can enhance the members' productivity and organizational success. Against this background, this policy seeks to present a framework for the management of emails in the organization.

2.0 Purpose

The purpose of this document is to provide policy directives governing the use of the Jamaica Constabulary Force (JCF) official Email. This document amends section D.5E-Mail in the Information and Communication Technology Policy for the JCF. More specifically it:

- 2.1 sets standards to ensure professional uses of the JCF Email;
- 2.2 outlines the requirements for use of the JCF email; and
- 2.4 allows for JCF's email to become an official means of communication.

3.0 Scope

This policy applies to all sworn and unsworn members of the JCF, and includes contractors and consultants who are assigned JCF Email accounts. It covers the appropriate use of the JCF Email as an official means of communicating.

4.0 Abbreviations

ICTD	Information Communication and Technology Division
JCF	Jamaica Constabulary Force

5.0 Definition

- 5.1 JCF E-Mail Refers to any email account with the domain being jcf.gov.jm
It covers any and all email messages including attachments sent using this email account
- 5.2 Defamatory False statement or series of statements which affect the reputation of a person or an organisation.

SECURING WIRELESS NETWORK

Rapid change and advancement in technology, wireless network security is more crucial than previous times. As Wi-Fi technology and the number of wireless devices increase, our workplaces, homes and public places are becoming more interconnected. It is important to implement a security strategy to minimize their potential for exploitation. Internet-connected devices may be used by nefarious entities to collect personal information, steal identities, compromise financial data, and silently listen to or watch user.

In this week's edition we will explore the importance of Network Security, how to secure Wi-Fi Networks and the best practices of Wireless Security.

Why is Network Security Important

Network Security has never been more essential in today's rapidly evolving digital landscape! As Wi-Fi and wireless devices continue to dominate the way we connect and communicate, ensuring our networks are secure is absolutely critical. Hackers and cybercriminals are constantly on the lookout for vulnerabilities to exploit, and even a small hole in your defenses can lead to a major breach of sensitive data. Attackers are always looking for weakness, so staying protected means staying one step ahead.

Each device connects to the network is another potential entry point for attackers. It is crucial to keep connected devices protected with anti-malware software and regularly installing the latest security patches. Whether it's your smartphone, laptop, smart TV, or even your fridge—every device is a potential target, so it's important to stay vigilant.

Network Security is not just a concern for large organizations; it's equally important for individuals who rely on Wi-Fi to access the internet.

By following best practices, you protect yourself and help create a safer online environment. As the digital world grows, taking steps to secure your network today ensures your data stays private and protected, giving you peace of mind.

How to Protect the Network

Use file sharing with caution

File sharing between devices should be disabled when not needed. You should always choose to only allow file sharing work networks, never on public networks. You may want to consider creating a dedicated directory for file sharing and restrict access to all other directories. In addition, you should password protect anything you share. Never open an entire hard drive for file sharing.

Change Default passwords

Default passwords on network devices are easy to find online, offering minimal security. Changing these passwords to complex ones, and updating them regularly, is your first defense against unauthorized access.

Best Practices of Wireless Security

Wireless security is crucial in today's Wi-Fi and mobile-driven world to protect data and user privacy. Key best practices include using strong passwords, two-factor authentication, and role-based access controls. Encryption is essential for safeguarding transmitted data. Regular monitoring, intrusion detection, and proactive audits help identify and address potential threats. Staying updated on security trends and vulnerabilities is also vital. By adopting these practices, organizations can reduce the risk of data breaches and ensure secure wireless technology usage.
