SERIAL NO. 3875

Sub. No. 1 IMPROPER USE OF SOCIAL MEDIA

The Police High Command notes with concern an emerging social media trend involving members of the Jamaica Constabulary Force. Members in uniform have been observed in videos and photographs conducting themselves in ways that could be construed as inappropriate and unprofessional.

The posting and circulation of videos on platforms such as TikTok, Instagram and Facebook have had very damaging effects on the Force's image and has in some instances diminished the gains we have made in building public confidence. Additionally, such inappropriate postings have also had a demoralizing effect on the majority of members who are committed to conducting themselves in a professional manner as we serve the public.

In some postings, members have been observed posturing with service firearms and other items of government property whilst demonstrating behaviours and making comments that are not in keeping with the values and standards of our organisation. Members are reminded that authorization must be given in writing by the Commissioner of Police or his designate for their appearance and/or the use of government properties in any theatrical production (formal or informal) to include videos and photographs. Members are also reminded of the Jamaica Constabulary Force Ethics and Integrity Policy which indicates that all members of the Jamaica Constabulary Force and its auxiliaries must behave in a manner that upholds the values and good reputation of the Jamaica Constabulary Force whether on or off duty.

The Jamaica Constabulary Force Corporate Use of Social Media Policy and Guidelines and the Personal Use of Social Media Policy and Guidelines are republished at Appendices 'A' and 'B' for information and compliance. Members who fail to comply with the provisions of these and related policies will be subjected to disciplinary proceedings with a view to dismissal in accordance with Regulation 47 of the Police Service Regulations, 1961.

Commanding Officers are to ensure these orders form part of briefings and lectures of all members over the next four (4) weeks.

Despite the many positive associate with social media, if improperly used, both personal and organisational embarrassment could result. Hence the need to educate and inform members of the police force about the positives and negatives involve in the usage of this technological tool and to standardize the methodologies in the dissemination of information using this medium.

1.2 Objectives and Scope

The objectives of this policy are to extend to all sworn and unsworn members of the police force access to and use of the social network system being employed by the organization whilst providing information for local media and citizen. The use of the social media by the police to:

Social media allows the Police Force to bypass the traditional media and deliver messages directly to the public. It allows for direct two way conversation with the community which enhances police citizen's public relation.

2.2 Defining Social Media

- iii. The standards required of members of the public who wish to contribute to official JCF social media sites.

This policy applies to the official use of social media for disseminating information to, or requesting information from the public. This policy does not apply to the use or creation of social media sites.

2.4 Personal Use

APPENDIX 'A' (CONT'D) TO FORCE ORDERS NO. 3875 DATED 2021-09-09

6.0 Management of Divisional/ Department postings to Police social media sites

6.1 Site Accountability

The approval of all significant social media activities, including social media sites, is ultimately the responsibility of the hosting Commander. For example, the Superintendent of a Local Area is responsible for the operation and the content of that Local Area Commander's (LAC) Facebook site. The Commander/Director of the JCF Corporate Communication may delegate this responsibility as deemed appropriate to other officers of the Command. Roles that may be delegated include responsibility for:

- (1) Implementation and management of the activity, including performance against the objectives set out in the approval document;
- (2) Administration and modification of the activity or site;
- (3) Approval of content to be posted on site
- (4) Records management of the site.

6.1.1 Administrators

Administration of the site must be undertaken by the Constabulary Communication Network and other employees who have been given permission to post activities on these sites. (Facebook, Twitter, and YouTube etc.)

6.1.2 Employees Posting to Site

The hosting formation Commander, or designate, is responsible for granting approval for Police Force employees to post information to the formation activity or site.

Staff given approval to post to the social media activity or site must:

- (1) be competent in the area of expertise they will be approved to post on;
- (2) understand the requirements on the public release of information set out in the JCF Media Policy and the Code of Conduct and Ethic and;
- (3) understand the requirements/responsibilities in representing the Police Service on these media sites as set out in this policy, especially at section 4.3

6.2 Approval of Content

Commanders or the delegated officers must only approve for publication on their Command's social media site or activity information which is operationally relevant to the functions of their Command, consistent with the content restrictions set out in section 3.2 and 8.3 of this policy and the JCF Media policy.

Commanders or delegates must assess the security risk involved in publishing information on a social media site before granting approval, given that once posted on-line, it cannot be withdrawn, even if deleted.

All content must be factual, presented in a neutral or positive tone, and represent the official agency policy or position. The site content must not reflect personal opinions, particularly on official policy or practices.

The key rule of assessing content is that the site or activity should not contain anything that the approving officer would not be comfortable with if published in a newspaper, or if said in public by a Police Officer in full uniform.

Do not approve any content that discloses personal information unless it can be justified that the information is being published for legitimate operational and/or law enforcement functions.

Approval for the posting of any information on a particular command site should be sought and obtained from the appropriate Commander(s), Corporate Communication Director or his/her designate.

5.3 MANAGEMENT OF CORPORATE SOCIAL MEDIA SITES

5.3.1 Management of Police Social Media Sites

The Constabulary Communication Network (CCN) is responsible for all official corporate Police Service social media sites set up for the exchange of information between the police and the public.

The JCF computer Centre is responsible for the creation, content, management and destruction of Police Force corporate media sites. The Digital Media Coordinator, CCN is responsible for maintaining the corporate social media sites, including the archiving of relevant material from the sites.

The Director Corporate Communications can grant access to other members of the Police Service to assist with administration of corporate police social media sites or to post content onto the sites.

5.3.3 Corporate Communications Unit Assistance

- (1) assisting in setting up the site;
- (2) providing on-site training to nominated administrators and;
- (3) providing on-going telephone support;

The Constabulary Communication Network will from time to time monitor the content of Command sites to:

APPENDIX 'A' (CONT'D) TO FORCE ORDERS NO. 3875 DATED 2021-09-09

6.2 CONTENT MANAGEMNET

6.2.1 Postings

Keep postings timely, focussing on issues of relevance today or of events coming up soon. Try and post regularly, mix up posts to provide varied and interesting content i.e. appeal for information followed by a crime prevention tip.

Try to make posts to share, to enable users to spread police information into the community, for example by providing options to post links to Twitter or Facebook.

Ensure posts are consistent with the corporate view i.e. that of the corporate communication spokesperson and the High Command.

6.2.2 Images of Wanted Persons or Missing Persons

If posting photo(s) of wanted person(s) or missing person(s), monitor the post carefully to ensure that comments do not contain information that may be defamatory or prejudicial to the investigative process or any future court proceedings. It is important that the photo(s) and the text(s) are removed immediately from the sites (e.g. from the Facebook Wall and photo gallery) once the Wanted Person is caught or the Missing Person found.

6.2.3 Responding to Questions

When responding to a question posed on a site or activity, it is recommended that a link be provided to the JCF's or other relevant government agency's website. For example, for questions regarding legislation, reference should be made to the relevant Act on the Legislation (JIS link etc) via a link. This option avoids inconsistencies between comments and government policies and legislations.

6.2.4 Appealing for Information

When appealing for information, encourage the public to report all information directly to the local Police Station, 311, 119 or Crime Stop. Members of the public should be discouraged from posting information about potential Wanted Person(s) or details of crime on a social media site such as Facebook Wall, as this could be prejudicial, defamatory or incorrect. Members of the public will post such information from time to time, when this occurs the information should be captured and removed from the site. The author should be encouraged to contact the police directly with any further information.

6.2.5 Advertising and Sponsorship

Advertising or sponsorship is not permitted on the Police Service social media sites unless authorised by the Police Service management board in special circumstances. The Police Service does not sponsor or endorse products or services from external persons or organization.

A company or individual sponsors of an approved police activity or program may be acknowledged on a police social media site. The level of acknowledgement must be commensurate with the value of the sponsorship, as specified in the media Policy. Any reference to a sponsor should acknowledge the sponsor without endorsing the sponsor or any product.

While a sponsor's name may be acknowledged, there must be no link to a sponsor's internet or social media site unless approved by the Director, Corporate Communications Unit.

6.2.6 Files, Formats and Links

Multimedia files such as .jpg, .wmv, and .mpg files may be posted for downloading. However, where possible, links should be provided to ensure compatibility and ease of both downloading and printing.

When linking to another site, priority should be given to the Police Force website or other relevant government agency websites, such as the JIS. Check should be made with the Digital Media Coordinator, Constabulary Communication Network, to link non-government websites. Care should be exercised that posting such links is not seen as an endorsement or sponsorship of this particular website. See section 6.3 below for more information.

6.3 External Links

The Police Service must be careful when determining the use of certain external link to a site or directory (e.g. drugs, family welfare). Some sites may carry different, even conflicting advice from the JCF's mandate and core principles and which has the potential to cause embarrassment to the Police Service. This is particularly the case with private sector organizations whose operations, standards and attitudes may not reflect those of the JCF and its auxiliaries.

Additionally, the Police Service may be legally liable for the re-publication of any defamatory material published via linking it to a police social media site, as if the Police Force were the original publisher.

Only links with specific relevance to Police Service Strategic Priorities, initiatives and operations may be listed, or those of other government departments and agencies.

Any links provided to another site must be closely monitored as part of the moderation process and the links removed or amended as appropriate.

6.4 ACCESSIBILITY

Social media sites or activities need to ensure that their content is available to the widest possible audience, including readers using assistive technology or accessibility features. Accessibility risks can be mitigated by the following standards procedures and suggestions outlined below.

6.4.1 Text

Text options include:

- (1) use of simple text;
- (2) avoid jargon;
- (3) use colour combinations that are easy to read and;
- (4) TTY numbers

6.4.2 Photographs

Name the photo after the description before uploading it to a social media site. Write text captions and descriptions where these fields are available. However, it is important not to name photographs of wanted persons.

6.4.3 PDF

Try to ensure documents are in compliance with source format before converting to PDF. Use formatting such as a header when applicable. Embed hyperlinks within the anchor text rather than supplying the physical URL to the right of the anchor text.

7.0 POLICE INVESTIGATIONS

7.1 Social Media Sites and Investigations

The CCN develops media and communications strategies and policies to assist a variety of policing situations, ranging from police investigations to the management of major incidents. Media and communications strategies can include both traditional and social media.

Contact the CCN to determine if your investigation or other law enforcement activity can be assisted by a Media or Communications strategy.

7.1.1 Images and Investigations

The release of photographic images or video recordings on Police social media sites can be a powerful investigative tool for:

- (1) identifying Wanted Persons;
- (2) finding a Missing Persons or;
- (3) creating more community interest, resulting in the message getting to a wider cross-section of the public.

For example, within one hour of receipt of video images from detectives investigating a murder, the video was edited by the CCN, reviewed by the RPLSB Counsels and uploaded to the Police YouTube site. A link to the video from the Police Twitter site was also created.

A number of viewers contacted police via the comment section on YouTube to provide detailed information identifying people depicted in the video. These comments were passed on to the investigating officers. The information assisted the detectives which resulted in two people being arrested.

The release of photographic images or video recordings to the public including on Police social media sites must be coordinated by the CCN, Corporate Communications department.

APPENDIX 'A' (CONT'D) TO FORCE ORDERS NO. 3875 DATED 2021-09-09

The procedure for releasing images on police media sites is the same for the release of images on the traditional media. All images are first approved by the relevant commander of the LAC or specialist command, to protect police methodology. (Refer to JCF media policy)

Images and audio containing undercover operatives or their vehicles are pixelated or altered to hide their identity and are not released without approval from the Director, NIB.

The images are then reviewed by the RPLSB Counsel to ensure all images released are legally sound and will not breach the terms of warrants, jeopardise court proceedings or breach privacy legislation.

To use images that do not belong to the Police Force such as CCTV) for non-investigative purposes, authorisation must be obtained from the owner to avoid infringing copyright or intellectual property rights.

8.0 MODERATION OF POLICE SITES

8.1 THE MODERATOR

8.1.1 Defamatory, Discriminatory or Offensive Public Comments

Social media sites inevitably attract comments that are sometimes offensive, inappropriate or irrelevant.

The JCF may be legally liable for defamatory postings on its social media sites where:

- (1) a person has requested the removal of a defamatory comment,
- (2) the Police Force ignores a defamatory comment on its site.
- (3) the defamatory matter is not removed after a reasonable time.

Failure to remove racially offensive, homophobic or other discriminatory comments may contravene anti-discrimination and defamatory legislations.

Where a person alleges that a comment is defamatory, discriminatory or offensive and requests its removal, the JCF must, as soon as reasonably possible, review and where necessary remove the content.

8.1.2 The Role of the Moderator

All police social media sites that seek public comments on-line must have official moderators appointed to review comments either before or soon after they are posted. The role of the moderator is to ensure that on-line postings placed on official JCF social media sites are relevant, non-threatening, respectful of the views of other contributor, and are not insulting, obscene or defamatory.

The moderator (s) must regularly review their social media site for activities and where necessary remove any postings that do not comply with the requirements, as set out in the acceptable Use Standards Below. A number of moderators may be appointed to ensure that postings are reviewed constantly throughout the day and night so as to avoid or reduce the potential of offensive or defamatory postings.

In reviewing on-line postings:

- (1) The moderation process must assess all content on police social media sites, whether posted by JCF representatives or by members of the public.
- (2) The moderation process must be sensitive to the diversity of Jamaican public opinion and avoid any perception of discrimination or censorship.
- (3) The moderation process must be objective and impartial. Content that is positive or negative and in context is acceptable. Content that is insulting, obscene, offensive, discriminatory, denigrating or defamatory etc., must be removed.
- (4) For more serious or repeated breaches of this policy and JCF Media policy the moderator can ban members of the public from the police social media site.
- (5) When appropriate, the moderator may inform posters of reasons for the rejection of a post. The author of the rejected post may be given an opportunity to resubmit or repost an edited version of the former post.

8.1.3 Corporate Moderator

The Digital Media Coordinator of CCN will moderate the JCF's Corporate YouTube, Facebook, and Twitter sites during business hours. After business hours these sites are moderated by member(s) assigned by the Director Corporate Communication and, are required to liaise with the on-call Senior Duty Officer.

APPENDIX 'A' (CONT'D) TO FORCE ORDERS NO. 3875 DATED 2021-09-09

8.2 COMPLAINTS

8.2.1 Customer Service Complaints

Citizens may use the JCF's official social sites to make complaints and or commend members of the JCF on the service delivery.

In responding to customer service complaints, do not be defensive or take negative comments personally. Thank the person(s) for their feedback and remain professional and courteous. Consider the issue before responding. Do not speak on behalf of another Command or on topics outside your expertise without first seeking advice and authorization. Avoid making any statement that could be seen as criticising the JCF or Government policies.

Send a copy of the complaint to the relevant Commander for processing and advise the person making the post that it has been sent on for action to be taken.

8.2.2 Part 8A Complaints

When reviewing negative postings, the administrators and moderators of police social media sites must be able to identify when a criticism constitutes an actual complaint as opposed to a general grumble or a customer service issue. To be a complaint it must:

- (1) Relate to the conduct of a police officer on or off duty,
- (2) State the Force's relevant policies on Ethics/ Integrity and Citizens Interaction Policy etc.

As a general rule, if a person nominates a specific incident and claims the police response was inappropriate or illegal, or if the actions of the Officer(s) were outside the Code of Conduct and Ethics, then the matter should be considered a complaint.

A reporting system should be put in place so that complaints posted on Police Force social media sites are captured and forwarded to the appropriate person or command.

8.3 ACCEPTABLE USE STANDARDS for site users

The aim of the acceptable use standards is to set standards that must be followed by members of the public when they contribute to police social media sites. The acceptable standards of usage help to create an environment where community members can contribute to investigations, the improvement of policy and or services, as well as the protection of the organisation from legal liability, without fear of abuse or harassment or exposure to offensive or otherwise inappropriate content.

All police social media sites that seek public comments on-line must have the following acceptable use standards displayed on the site:

When contributing your views to this forum, please ensure that you:

- (1) Protect your personal privacy and that of others, unless you are providing personal information to assist a police investigation or other request for advice from the public, by not including personal information of either yourself or of others in your posts to the forum (such as names, email addresses, private addresses or phone numbers)

9.0 Evaluation

9.1 Assessment Effectiveness

9.1.1. On-going Evaluation

An evaluation of police social media sites should be conducted every twelve months to ensure the site continues to be relevant to the mission of the JCF and is achieving its objectives.

The evaluation of social media sites should include analysis of:

- (1) success or failure measured against the agreed objectives of the sites;
- (2) time spent administering the site- cost in terms of the work loaded on staff members compared with the benefits;
- (3) the effectiveness of the administrators and moderators in managing the site;

APPENDIX 'B' PERSONAL USE OF SOCIAL MEDIA POLICY & GUIDELINES
TO FORCE ORDERS NO. 3875 DATED 2021-09-09

Personal Use of Social Media Policy & Guidelines

1 Purpose

The purpose of this policy is to inform, guide and educate sworn and unsworn members of the Jamaican Police Force in the accepted standard of use of social media whilst being a serving member of the police force. This policy is not intended to dissuade members from using social media, but to set minimum standard in its usage based on the nature of policing. The fact that members are scrutinized on, or off duty, makes it even more important for our behaviour and utterances to be in keeping with the code of conduct governing the organisation. Social media when used appropriately can be a great tool to advance our personal profile, make friends and keep in touch with the wider global community.

1.0 Background

The growing popularity of the social media network throughout the world has not escaped the members of the Jamaican Police Force, sworn and unsworn employees alike. Whilst these media have helped in the maintenance and rekindling of personal and professional relationships and have widen the knowledge base of members, they have also allowed for the creation of new opportunities, challenges and risks to the members of the organisation. While most members display professionalism in the use of these social media, there are others whose behaviour if left unchecked will bring the force into disrepute and endanger themselves and their colleagues. Some of the blatant infractions committed by some members of the organisation include; the open display of pictures with members handling weapons, open display of intimacy, expression of apathy towards administration, discussion of matters under investigation and other utterances that are liable.

Public relations are influenced by the attitude of the public towards the police and by the attitude of the police towards the public. The attitude of citizens is also influenced by other people and the media. It should be appreciated therefore that the attitude of the public is strongly influenced not only by their personal experience but also by their expectations and understanding of police policies. When adverse social commentaries and photographic displays are transmitted virally by members of the force it impacts the image and relations with the public. The damage is never usually witnessed by the sender but the image and integrity of the organisation comes up for scrutiny. Consequently the relations of the police with the public will be affected as the attitude of the average citizen is reflective of the attitudes of citizens at all levels of society

1.1 Scope

This document applies to the personal use of social media sites by members of the Jamaica Constabulary Force, Island Special Constabulary Force, Rural Police Force, unsworn members (including contract and temporary), contractors, sub-contractors and consultants who are privy to information because of their unique position with the police force.

2 Legislative Framework

This document should be read in conjunction with the Jamaican Constitution, the Jamaica Constabulary Force Ethics and Integrity Policy and The JCF Media Policy.

a) Constitutional Provisions: the Jamaican Constitution

Enshrined in the Constitution of Jamaica is the protection of certain fundamental rights of the citizens to include but not limited to the right to freedom of expression, freedom to hold opinion and to receive and impart ideas and information.

Sec 22(1) except with his own consent, no person shall be hindered in the enjoyment of his freedom of expression, and for the purposes of this section the said freedom includes the freedom to hold opinions and to receive and impart ideas and information without interference, and freedom from interference with his correspondence and other means of communication.

Albeit this right to freedom of expression is a constitutional right to which all Jamaicans are entitled, it must be noted that this right is not an absolute right and requires of every citizen responsible conduct and commentary.

b) which is reasonably required:

i. in the interests of defence, public safety, public order, public morality or public health; or

ii. for the purpose of protecting the reputations, rights and freedoms of other persons, or the private lives of persons concerned in legal proceedings, preventing the disclosure of information received in confidence, maintaining the authority and independence of the courts, or regulating telephony, telegraphy, posts, wireless broadcasting, television or other means of communication, public exhibitions or public entertainments; or Subsection 2(a) (b), imposes restrictions upon public officers, police officers or upon members of a defence force."

On interpretation appears to give the legislature and other organs of the State the authority to restrict freedom of expression in relation to "public officers, police officers or upon members of a defence force."

2.1 Charter of Fundamental Rights and Freedoms Act (Constitutional Amendment Act 2011)

With the passing of the Charter of Fundamental Rights and Freedoms Act in April 2011 however, which repeals and replaces Chapter 3 of the Constitution under which Section 22 falls there appears to be a change in the interpretation as it relates to the rights to freedom of expression. There are restriction on public officers to include, police officers and members of the defence force as it relates to their freedom of Expression

2.2 Libel and Slander Act

Members of the organisation are being reminded that when making comments via social media, to do so in keeping with Sections 5 and 6 of the Libel and Slander Act:

Sec (5). " If any person shall maliciously publish any defamatory libel, knowing the same to be false, every such person, being convicted thereof, shall be liable to be imprisoned for a term not exceeding two years, and to pay such fine as the court shall impose

Sec (6). If any person shall maliciously publish any defamatory libel, every such person, being convicted thereof, shall be liable to fine or imprisonment or both, as the court may impose, such imprisonment not to exceed the term of one year."

2.3 References

a) JCF Media Policy

This policy sets standards that must be followed when Police Service employee use social media in a private capacity, especially if they identify themselves as Police service employees either directly or as part of a user profile, or if they can be identified as working for the Police Service via the content of their postings.

These guidelines identify the key dangers involved in the personal use of social media by police employees, and provide recommendations to help employees protect their privacy and career, as well as the safety of themselves, their family and colleagues.

3.2 Social Media is Public Comment

There is no such thing as a "private" social media site, regardless of the privacy settings. Posting information on-line is no different from publishing in a newspaper. If an employee makes any comment about the Police Service on a social media site they are making a public comment.

Employees must not, in their capacity as Police Service employees, make any police comment in social media about any incident, police policy or procedure without prior authorization from the Commissioner of Police in accordance with the Media Policy and the Corporate Social Media Policy.

A corporate spokesperson is responsible for representing the JCF and its auxiliaries externally on matters concerning particular communities, crimes or policing portfolios and activities. The Spokesperson ensures there are consistent, concise, accurate and clear information to the public on key corporate issues.

3.3 Public Comment as a Private Citizen

A person identifiable as a police officer who posts offensive, racist or obscene material while off duty on social media sites, could be in breach of the Jamaica Constabulary Force Ethics and Integrity Policy in the same way as if he/she shouted offensive, racist or obscene material in public whilst in uniform.

3.4 On-line Activity

The Jamaica Constabulary Force Ethics and Integrity Policy states that all members of the JCF and its auxiliaries must behave honestly and in a way that upholds the values and the good reputation of the Police Service whether on or off duty.

In posting to social media sites in a private capacity:

- (1) Links or references to documents on JCF website, intranet or social media sites are permitted;
- (2) Give an opinion but be clear that it is a personal opinion; where personal views are expressed then it is encouraged that the pre-cursor "In my Opinion" be attached.
- (3) Do not comment on, suggest or hint at matters that are, or are likely to be investigated. Such action may jeopardise the investigative and or judicial process;
- (4) Do not post any material that may bring the JCF and its auxiliaries into disrepute;
- (5) Do not comment on or post documents that are confidential and proprietary to administration.
- (6) Under no circumstances should offensive comments be made about managers, peers or colleagues.
- (7) Make sure on-line activities do not interfere with job performance. For example, public comment on a particular Police Force or Government policy or program is inappropriate if the employee is directly involved in advising on, directing the implementation of, or administering that policy program. The comment(s) could be seen as compromising the employee's ability to do the job in an unbiased manner;

APPENDIX 'B' (CONT'D) TO FORCE ORDERS NO. 3875 DATED 2021-09-09

- (8) Think of what you write in the same way as things you might say to a journalist, or conversations you might have with people you don't know. If you would not say it in those situations, do not say it online. Talking about some things could get you and the organisation in legal trouble, even if it is just your own personal view
- (9) Whether on or off duty a police employee's conduct will reflect on the organisation. All employees must protect the reputation of the Police Service by behaving in a lawful and appropriate manner consistent with the Force's Ethics and Integrity Policy.
- (10) Do not use police email addresses in personal social media sites; Do not imply endorsement of personal views, or authorisation to speak on behalf of the police force;
- (11) Obey the law- Do not post any material that is defamatory, libellous, discriminatory, harassing, obscene or threatening, discloses other persons' personal information or infringes intellectual property, copyright or a trademark;
- (12) Do not use the name of the Police Force to endorse products, causes or opinions
- (13) Do not post Police Service insignias without official consent
- (14) Your conduct should be appropriate at all times for your role. Your manager, reporters and peers may read what you write.

3.5 CONFIDENTIAL INFORMATION

The unauthorised disclosure of confidential information is a significant risk to the Police Service and has serious ramifications for any employee who commits such disclosure.

For example, the disclosure of confidential police information by uploading operational material (crime scene photos, in-car video footage, CCTV footage or footage of police training exercises, accused whilst in police custody, etc) onto social media sites is a serious breach of legislation and policy and may lead to criminal charges being laid against offending employees.

The Jamaica Constabulary Force Ethics and Integrity Policy states that an employee must only access, use or disclose confidential information if required by their duties and allowed by Police Service policy.

An officer is expected to treat all information which comes to their attention in an official capacity as strictly confidential, and on no account without proper authorization divulge it to anyone. This is a serious matter which may result in managerial action and could jeopardise employment with the Police Service.

The unauthorised on-line publication of confidential information such as training videos discloses police methodology to the public. Police employees, who provide police methodology to criminals and the media via this medium, directly compromise the safety of operational police officers.

Employees, who are uncertain whether or not material they have posted on a social media site is a breach of law or policy, are to remove the material immediately and then seek advice from senior officer such as a duty officer or Commander.

4 CONFLICTS OF INTEREST

4.1 Conflict of Interest Policy

The Conflicts of Interest Policy and Guidelines contained within the Jamaica Constabulary Force Ethics and Integrity Policy states that it is the responsibilities of all employees to take reasonable steps to:

- (1) Identify and avoid actual, potential or perceived conflicts of interests
- (2) Report those conflicts of interest which cannot be avoided, and
- (3) Cooperate in the management of such perceived conflicts of interest

Where a conflict of interest arises due to an employee's social media site or postings, the employee must notify their Commander or Supervisor in writing. The commander/supervisor and the employee must manage the conflict of interest to protect the integrity of the employee the JCF and its auxiliaries.

4.2 Improper Associations

The Jamaica Constabulary Force Ethics and Integrity Policy treating with Police Service Conflicts of Interest (Improper Associations) the states that employees of the JCF and its auxiliaries must take all reasonable steps to identify and avoid associations with people, groups or organizations that are involved in (or perceived to be involved in) any activity that is incompatible with their roles to uphold the law.

An employee's association with some on-line groups or individuals could be seen as endorsement of their views. This includes 'liking' groups on Facebook, 'following groups or people on Twitter, or accepting people as 'friends'.

Association with individuals, activities or social media groups that may damage the reputation of the Police service must be avoided.

4.3 The Media

If an employee is contacted by the media about posts on their social media sites that relate to the JCF, they must talk to their manager and the Police Media Unit/CCN before responding.

If an employee is offered payment to produce a blog or micro blog etc. for a third party, this could constitute a conflict of interest and /or secondary employment and must be discussed with their manager.

5 MONITORING

5.1 Reporting Misconduct

If a Police Service employee becomes aware of a social media site or posting that is illegal or support criminal conducts/activities he are she is duty bound to report the matter to the relevant departments for investigation.

If staff is aware of on-line criticism or complaints about police activities, refer them to the relevant authorities for assessment.

5.2 Audits of Social Media Sites

The JCF will from time to time conduct audits of social media sites to identify breaches of legislation and Policies. In response to specific concerns, complaints or information about an employee, the JCF may conduct on-line searches to obtain additional information about the employee in order to assess or investigate the complaint or concern.

PART 2: GUIDELINES

6 PROTECTING YOUR PRIVACY AND SAFETY

6.1 NOTHING IS PRIVATE ON THE WEB

Employees are advised against posting anything to social media sites that would cause discomfort to themselves and the organisation if:

- (1) Quoted in the media
- (2) Raised in court while they are giving evidence
- (3) Tested against the SELF test (Scrutiny, Ethical, Lawful, Fair)

Everything posted or received on a social media site is public property. Once something is published on-line, control of it is lost forever. Search engines can find posts years after the publication date. Comments, even when sent to friends only can be forwarded, quoted or misquoted. Archival systems save or cache information even if deleted can reproduce information. Once it is posted on-line, it cannot be withdrawn.

The terms of service for social media sites apply to whatever is posted on the site. The terms may allow for posted material to be used in ways that the author did not intend, such as being exchanged with third parties.

6.2 Safety- Personal information

The amount of personal information a police employee places on social media sites is a matter of personal choice. However, employees need to be aware of the potential risks involved for themselves and others when making these decisions.

APPENDIX 'B' (CONT'D) TO FORCE ORDERS NO. 3875 DATED 2021-09-09

Personal social media sites are of potential safety and privacy risks to police employees and others if not carefully managed. Disclosing too much private information on social media makes a person easy to locate both on-line and off-line. This vulnerability creates a risk of identity theft, fraud, theft, physical attack, stalking, harassment and intimidation.

For example, if an employee's file contains information such as their date of birth and spouse or parents' names, this can give criminals enough information to answer the security questions a bank will ask before giving them access to the officer's financial information or bank accounts.

More importantly, the nature of police work exposes police employees to the risk of offenders seeking revenge. Social media sites with easily accessible personal information provide a simple and effective means to locate an officer and their family or friends.

It is strongly recommended that to protect themselves, family and friends, police staff (sworn and unsworn) should never identify themselves either directly or indirectly as Police Force employees on social sites.

It is also recommended that employees strictly limit the amount of personal information they post on social sites. Employees should think seriously about the risks involved to themselves, family and friends if they choose to include personal information about themselves or others in posts or social media sites, such as names, dates of birth, home or work addresses, private or work email addresses or telephone numbers, relationship status or any other personal information like photographs that may be useful for identity thieves or criminals seeking revenge. It is a good idea to create a separate email address that is used only with personal social media sites.

Where members of the JCF and its auxiliaries choose to identify themselves as police employees, it is recommended that they do not post identifying information about their family such as where they live, where they or their partner works or what school their children attend. For example, do not post photographs of home showing the street number, or photographs of private vehicle (s) show the licence plates.

6.3 Privacy Settings

It is recommended that the highest available level of privacy settings be selected to control access to personal information as appropriate. In order to ensure maximum security, it is recommended that sharing rights be set to 'friends only'. Do not become complacent, as privacy settings are no protection against determined hackers.

Check privacy settings when a social media site is redesigned. During redesign privacy setting may have defaulted to a lower level of security, providing public access to profiles.

6.4 Stalk Book: Knowing where you are

It is recommended that employees do not post information about the activities they will be participating in, their location or intended location as this makes them easy target. To guard against burglaries or malicious damage, do not post information that discloses when you are away from home.

Some social media sites with programs such as Foursquare, Gowalla or Facebook Places offer the ability to reveal to the public a person's exact location in real time, via mobile phones. While this will enable people to locate friends, it can enable criminals to accumulate a very detailed map of a person's habits, as well as identify their exact location at any given time. Criminals will also know when a person is not at home.

If adopting this type of social media service, it is recommended that employees limit to 'friends only' those who can access their location, and make sure they only have on-line friends they can trust.

6.5 Protect your reputation

It is recommended that employees conduct personal on-line searches. Contact should be initiated with websites that have posted personal or inaccurate information without your permission. If the information displayed contravenes the websites policies they may remove it. On request, social media sites like Facebook and LinkedIn may remove the profiles of persons who impersonate others.

APPENDIX 'B' (CONT'D) TO FORCE ORDERS NO. 3875 DATED 2021-09-09

7 ON-LINE FRIENDS

7.1 Friends

An employee's safety and on-line security is only as good as their friends' common sense and security settings. Researchers have found that one tactic used by people seeking to obtain confidential information about someone is to simply send a friend request to the target. If accepted, they have access to considerable personal information about their target, including pictures, contact information, lifestyles, family and associates.

Once accepted a friend has the ability to forward to others the private information they have been given access to, or to quote you when they make comments publicly on-line. Given the risk, consider carefully before accepting friend request especially from person in media related field of work. It has been the experience of several law enforcement officers, where members of the media have used their on-line affiliation as a source of information for news stories.

To avoid revealing personal information to strangers, or having inappropriate or illegal postings on a personal site, it is recommended that employees check all potential friends carefully before approving them, especially strangers. Find out if any current friends know the person, and run an on-line search and check their profiles. Only accept people as friends after confirming their identity and that the friendship would not be an improper association. If an employee has any doubts about whether to approve someone as a friend- do not approve them.

Friend profiles should be reviewed occasionally to see if their recent activity is unacceptable or creates a new conflict of interest or improper association.

7.2 Friends of Friends

Accepting a friend will also link an employee to that new friend's associates (Friends of Friends). This link, although direct, can create risks. It is recommended that employees set their privacy settings so that their site cannot be seen by Friends of Friends. (Be aware that the standard setting usually allows access to Friends of Friends).

Becoming linked to a friend's associates can also create a conflict of interest with a police employee's public role, or an improper association.

8 PROTECTING YOUR CAREER & COLLEAGUES

8.1 SOCIAL MEDIA USE AND YOUR CAREER

8.1.1 Inappropriate Photographs or Comments

Inappropriate photographs or comments on social media sites are a risk to both the police employee and the Force.

Employees are advised to ensure that what they post today will not come back to affect their career, sometimes years later. Choose profile photographs and avatars with care. Employees should think very carefully about the comments they posts on-line; especially if intoxicated. It is recommended that employees only do or say on-line what they would do or say off-line in public. For example, staff should only load comments or photographs onto social media sites that they would be comfortable with seeing on the front of the newspaper.

Reporters and lawyers regularly check the social websites of people who come to their attention. Major newspapers employ staff to actively investigate social media sites to identify content or angles for news stories.

Newspapers generally keep copies of all photographs they publish. The police officers identified by their embarrassing photographs may find the pictures republished by the newspaper years later if they again make the news. This risk may limit their ability to be considered acceptable for any high profile or senior police positions.

A New York defence lawyer got his client's charge downgraded from carrying a loaded weapon to resist arrest by arguing that the arresting officer planted the gun on the defendant as an excuse for breaking his ribs during the arrest. The lawyer succeeded in damaging the officer's credibility by tabling evidence from the officer's media sites. On these sites the officer had stated he was devious, watching a film about a corrupt police officer to brush up on procedure, and had posted advice on how to assault people during an arrest.

Employers also conduct internet searches on job candidates before making an offer of employment. A person whose social media profile shows them to be socially irresponsible is less likely to be employed.

APPENDIX 'B' (CONT'D) TO FORCE ORDERS NO. 3875 DATED 2021-09-09

9 SOCIAL USE AND COVERT CAREERS

9.1 Undercover and Surveillance Operatives

The Police Service goes to considerable lengths to protect the identity of undercover and surveillance operatives in covert operations; including the provision of assumed identities and the suppression of public records. Police employees must take care to ensure that undercover and surveillance operatives cannot be identified on-line.

Undercover and surveillance operatives are strongly advised not to have a personal social media site which identifies them by name, photograph, or employment with the Police Service.

Undercover operatives who use or are identifiable on social media sites may compromise their safety and ongoing operational effectiveness in the Undercover Program. Should this occur an assessment will be made by the Director NIB, as to their continued deployment in this role. The assessment is to ensure the safety and welfare of undercover officers, as well as the integrity of Police operations and methodologies.

Police employees must also consider the consequences when they identify colleagues as police officers on social media sites. There is a real potential to inadvertently endanger the lives to covert colleagues by publishing on social media sites picture or information identifying them or their employment by the Police Service. Police employees not currently in undercover or surveillance roles should consider the potential affect of having a media site of their future ability to perform covert duties. An undercover or surveillance career may be impossible after years of publishing their identity and picture on social media site.

9.2 Counter Intelligence and Extortion

Law enforcement agencies use social media sites to gather intelligence- so do criminals. Police employees run the risk of criminals using social media sites to befriend them on-line to obtain sensitive information. If a criminal can lure the employee into compromising situations either on-line or off-line, then the employee may be vulnerable to extortion to provide sensitive information.

10 PROTECTING YOUR COLLEAGUES

10.1 Postings of other people

Employees should think carefully before posting pictures or personal information about other police employees. For example, posting pictures of colleagues onto social media sites in what is seen as funny situations may seriously damage their reputations and career, or place their life at risk, sometime years after the posting was made and then deleted. Similarly, an employee's reputation and career may be damaged due to postings about them made by their friend or colleagues.

Under no circumstances should offensive comments be made about Police Service colleagues on social media sites.

Employees should be considerate to their colleagues and not post details of private conversations, photographs of colleagues or tag photographs with a colleague's name without permission. Employees should also not post information about a colleague, or remove information posted about them, if that colleague did give consent.

10.2 Legal Liability

It is recommended that employees seek permission from the person before making postings about others, especially if the posting is compromising or contains information that identifies them by name, photograph, and employment with the Police Service or where they live. A publication which damages the reputation of a person may be defamation. Placing inappropriate pictures of or comments about others onto social media sites, or allowing others to post such pictures or comments on a personal site, could result in expensive litigation for defamation.
